

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
Washington, DC 20554

OFFICE OF THE CHAIRMAN
JAMES H. QUELLO

February 25, 1993

To All SBAC Members:

On February 5, 1993, President Clinton designated me to chair the Federal Communications Commission serving on an interim basis pending designation of a permanent chair. I have accepted this responsibility knowing full well it will take the support and wisdom offered from both the public and private sector to make my tenure a success.

As members of the FCC Small Business Advisory Committee (OSBA), you are an integral part of our goals of this nation's small, minority, female and rural businesspersons in the telecommunications industry.

Due to previously scheduled business meetings, I am unable to be with you in San Francisco. However, I do want to convey to you the importance I place on the role of small business in the telecommunication field. A good example of this is the fact that small businesses have been instrumental in the development of new services, such as air-ground communication and new technologies, such as ACSB. Be assured that you have my support.

I wish you every success in completing your dynamic agenda and I look forward to reviewing your progress when you return to the nation's capital.

Once again, I appreciate your efforts and keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

James H. Quello
Chairman
