Dear Jack,

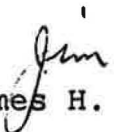

Congratulations on the well deserved laudatory Sunday feature in the Washington Post. It read like further contract extension time!

Jack, as a fellow Italian with a bundle of well directed energy, you are destined to flunk retirement like I did. I still feel retirement is a bad habit that busy people don't have time to cultivate.

Despite our differences on the fin-syn issue, I believe we can work together on future worldwide communications issues. It has always been more enjoyable and productive working with you than against you.

Anyway, you are a traditional "class act" and a valued longtime friend.

Kindest regards,

James H. Quello
